

Mystery : Babylon the Great

Date: 19:09:30 Dec 12, 2013 - PDF January 2, 2022 AD

And upon her forehead was a name written Mystery : Babylon the Great the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth.

*And the angel said unto me
Wherefore did you marvel?
I will tell you the Mystery of The Woman...*

In the above translation you will see that I have replaced the comma after Mystery (μυστήριον) and placed a semi colon in its place. I did this for a reason. Many people use this word to say that the end times Babylon is going to be a 'spiritual' one and then apply these passages to whatever group they feel fits the facts.

However, Ancient Greek Grammar allows no such application for the simple reason that this word (Strong's 3466), if it were a name, would be spelled differently (Μυστερυ - Mysteru as opposed to mysterion) and the 'm' would be capitalized which is why the KJV includes the comma.

Thus, this is referring to a mystery concerning Babylon as the latter part of the above quote makes clear from the context (not a Mystery Babylon). The Angel is going to show John the Mystery concerning Babylon.

This allows no spiritual application regardless of how many people try to do so - most notably the Mormons who apply it to America - it's never a good idea to let cultists interpret Eschatology for you - and all these groups do so because they have a favorite person they are trying to promote as the Antichrist but, as I have told many of them, the Antichrist is a person, not a Political Position to be campaigned for.

Thus, if you take all the clues as to the identity of this woman, you can only come to one conclusion and that is that the ancient city and empire is going to be rebuilt as I have stated many times. And I have included many points on current events etc, which shows us that they are planning on doing just that. And, in fact, might it be possible that all the Weather Modification is to make the Mesopotamian Plains the Fertile Crescent once again?

The Wilderness

I remind everyone that John specifically stated that he was taken out into the Wilderness to see this city. This can only be the plains of Shinar as previously stated, which is subsequently confirmed by Ezekiel 19, where the King of Judah is taken to Babylon which is then called "The Wilderness" (vs 9 and 13). Remember that Ezekial specifically states that this had already been done and this then is not a prophecy but a literal description of ancient Babylon and thus the reference in Revelation is all the more conclusive.

Never destroyed by Fire

Babylon (which has always been inhabited to this day) was never destroyed by fire as predicted, including that they wouldn't reuse the bricks which they have done (Is and Jer).

The Plains of Shinar

Zechariah tells us after the overthrow of Babylon by the Medes and Persians (which some say is its 'destruction') it will have its house rebuilt on its own base on the Plains of Shinar, which is exactly what Daniel 4 tells us, after the Seven Times (of the Church) pass over it.

The Land of the Chaldeans

Jeremiah calls it Chaldea and the Land of the Chaldeans, as does Isaiah.

The Euphrates

Jeremiah and John both link it to the Euphrates, and both say that it sits on Many Waters of the Eurasian crossroads..

The Seven Mountains

It was built, as John says, on the Seven Mountains that surround the Mesopotamian Plain (and not seven man made ramparts called hills as Rome was), which their World Map and Creation Epic prove. Where the 'islands' of the map are the mountain tops in the heavenly sea.

The Mother of Harlots

John here calls her the Mother of Harlots and that is exactly what ancient Babylon is, whose civilization still rules the world today (when you look at a calendar, or your watch, or go to a library or drive on a road or ride a train you are utilizing a civilization that originated in Babylon, very possibly pre flood in origin), and includes politics and religion and most civil institutions and the woman appears as such in the Gilgamesh Epic.

This woman is the same as the second beast in Rev 13 and therefore arises after the revived Roman Empire which rules out every city now on the earth.

Babylon

It is called Babylon by all the prophets who speak of it including here in John as a proper grammatical interpretation makes clear, and especially in the succeeding verses where it is called simply Babylon with no more mystery attached

Peter was not using Babylon as a 'code word' for Rome for at the time he wrote that, there was a sizable Jewish community in Babylon (which the Apostles chose as one of seven Apostolic Sees second after Jerusalem itself) that he assuredly ministered to.

Death of Apostles and Prophets

Some people ignore all the clues above and focus on the colors that she wore, which basically narrows it down to only a couple of thousand of organizations that use those same colors. When you take all that and realize as John states that this city was responsible for the death of the Prophets (OT) and Apostles (NT) then this is conclusively only one City.

Future Destruction

Jeremiah (51) tells us that Babylon will be overthrown by the Kings of Ararat etc. And this area is in the Caucasus Mountains (ie not the Medes and Persians). What few people realize is that this is the area where the Assyrians exiled the Nation of Ephraim (Caucasians), into a buffer zone between them and their enemies.

However, Ephraim made friends with their enemies and then helped the Babylonians overthrow the Assyrians. But then, they helped the Medes and Persians overthrow Babylon. And then they helped the Greeks overthrow the Medes and then they helped the Romans overthrow the Greeks. And, as the Parthians, they were about to overthrow Rome when the Church age began and they became 'lost' to history.

God used the Nation of Ephraim at every change in the World power (just like he used the Brits against the Emperor Napoleon). Hence, this shows us that in the end days that the Lost Nation of Ephraim (and all the other ten tribes which are scattered throughout the globe) will be used by God in the overthrow of the end times Babylonian Kingdom.

The Road to Babylon

Date: 18:42:03 Dec 12, 2013 - original posting circa 2003 AD

I heard an American expert on the public radio the other day say something that made me stop and think. He said, concerning the Asian countries, that if we are to open the market potential of these countries and lift them out of their economic situation, that the "Old Roads" would have to be "Opened Up."

A little light went on, and the last piece of the puzzle fell into place. You see, if they were planning on rebuilding Babylon, the Old Road from Africa would run along the Med coast right through Israel. And the Old Road from Europe would run right through the Balkan Peninsula Countries, and finally, the Old Road (Silk Road) from the Asian Countries would run right through Afghanistan and specifically right through Kabul (via the Khyber Pass)!

The three hottest spots on the face of the earth, all lead back to Babylon. So, all these people have died, and all these ethic groups have been persuaded to kill each other and the superpowers are now picking their sides, all so a bunch of bankers could build a road.

Kind of gives you a warm fuzzy feeling inside, doesn't it?

Regardless of what anyone may think to the contrary, when we know that Saddam has been rebuilding Babylon, and has been doing construction work on the Euphrates, including dredging the mouth of the river, and when we realize that the Economic and Religious and Political Babylonian Empire is going to be restored in the end times, then it is not much of a stretch of the imagination to realize that they will want their city rebuilt.

So, the Babylonian Bankers of Western Europe 'persuaded' Russia to pave the road through Afghanistan and they failed, so now they have 'persuaded' the Americans to give it a go.

This does not bode well for the Taliban, who should realize that Bin Laden is being used by the western bankers (and hence has ceased to be their 'guest') and tell him to leave, if they want their government to survive. However, even if they did this, the bankers would probably find someone else to 'pave the way' to Babylon, probably China.

The Balance of Power is a very precarious thing.

Subsequent to our arrival, road work was indeed performed in Afghanistan and a road trip that once took the better part of a day now only takes a couple of hours if that from what I recall.

The Basket Case Bimbo from Babylon

And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, 'Come and see', and I beheld and Lo, a black horse, and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand, and I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, 'A measure of wheat for a penny and three measures of barley for a penny and see that you hurt not the oil or the wine...

The Ephah was the Basket of Commerce and this indicates that the woman's rise to power will be via controlling the world's commerce and specifically that commerce that relates to Food.

Wait and see what happens when the Breadbasket of the world is under attack from our enemies and no food is being exported to the rest of the world and see what happens to the people of the world who are subsequently forced to take the mark of the beast for that penny a day for food.

This is subsequently reinforced by chapter 13 of Revelation as well as chapters 17-18. It will be through the scarcity of food that they will try and enslave the world through the mark of the beast program. My homeless brethren can relate to this very well.

Interestingly enough, after Cain received his mark, he also had problems getting food to eat, for the ground was cursed for him. And, in theory, if we were to expand this out all the way, if Cain were to become the world ruler (i.e. the Antichrist), that would make the entire world agriculturally unproductive.

Yet another reason why it is called the Great Tribulation.

The Two Storks

Date: 16:31:16 Apr 8, 2019

Turkey and China are both working towards the completion of the Old Silk Road and in doing so are the two Storks that bring the Women back to her own base.

Due to be finished this year from last I heard before Coronavirus Restrictions - see below.

Chinese experts point to Turkey's central role in Belt and Road Initiative

Oct 24, 2018 - Turkey, given its central location, will play a pivotal role in China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), Chinese experts have said. They also rejected.

Silk Road - Livius

The Silk Road is the modern name for the network of trade routes...that would later be known as the Silk Road started in Babylon.

Rebuilding Babylon

As far as a city being physically built in a short period of time, it has been done before. Vegas is one example, as well as the city that Saddam just finished out in the desert somewhere and you have the city that sprang up surrounding the Manhattan Project in just three years during World War Two.

And of course, along with that, he has been working on Babylon for some time now and as I have stated in some posts, there is probably a lot of work being done that we are not aware of - like the work at the mouth of the Euphrates river.

I have also read that they have actually plowed out the old canal that linked the Euphrates to the Tigris which work was done during, or just after, the first Iraq war and it is no coincidence that they have chosen to make Hillah (current name for the ancient city) one of the Headquarters for this second Iraq war and whenever you have the Military move into an area, rest assured, you are gonna have every merchant in the world there plying their goods and services which will also result in a 'rebuilding' of the city.

This also managed to take Babylon off the Place of Historical Interest list (ie World Heritage Site) so that it could be rebuilt. And, of course, as of the writing of this update, we have repaired the roads through Afghanistan and Turkey is working on restoring their end of the old Silk Road as China has done with their end.

Along these lines, we know that the first Babylon was never finished, but God brought the work to a sudden end, and this is to be expected of this city as well.

And finally, again the Scriptures indicate that they will be in the process of building this city, when the fires of the tribulation occur - in other words, they never really finish it - "they labor in the very fire".

Concerning the Power of the Kingdom, this is actually already in place throughout Europe and the World, and is only waiting on the Rapture, and the Antichrist, to be complete.

As far as the richness of this city, I touched upon this a little in another post. Back on Black Monday, when the stock market took a plunge, I watched the GNP of the world's leading countries specifically to see what the reaction would be. In the spring every major country in the world showed a market increase in the GNP of their countries and this serves to show what will happen at the fall of America and they will use the rebuilding of Babylon as the motivation for all the unemployed people of the world.

When manpower has the motivation, and focus, anything can be accomplished, which is God's assessment of the first attempt to build Babylon.

Perhaps, this is part of the clue to the 'mystery' of Babylon, not solely that it would be rebuilt but also that its rebuilding occurred almost overnight.

Look at the Gold Boom towns in the MidWest, that made a lot of people rich overnight. Look at the city that sprang up around the Manhattan Project, also making a lot of businesses rich. This was achieved in a very short time, two or three years, if I am not mistaken.

As well, we need to know a little bit about finances. The current financial leaders of this world are purposely placing a 'straight jacket' on all the nations economies, using various means. The IMF loans alone will prove this to anyone who wants to do the research.

You have tariffs and taxes that also tie this straight jacket in place. At the proper moment, when they have consolidated all the world's financial power, they can then take off this straight jacket and the goods and services of the entire world will literally begin to flow at incredible rates, literally making all merchants rich beyond their expectations, and this almost overnight.

This is not my 'theory' but can be easily searched out by anyone who cares to do the work. Why do you think that they dropped the trade barriers in Europe? To free up the flow of goods and money, so as to make Europe competitive on America's level.

For those who insist that only America has the financial ability to fulfill this prophecy, it should be known that a United Europe will Eclipse America Trading Status, with room to spare.

They have the very real potential to become richer than us, especially when you realize that for all practical purposes America is Bankrupt.

Has everyone forgotten about our trillion plus debt? And, exactly who do we owe this money to? The answer should make this post crystal clear, for America owes the Bankers in Europe over a Trillion Dollars.

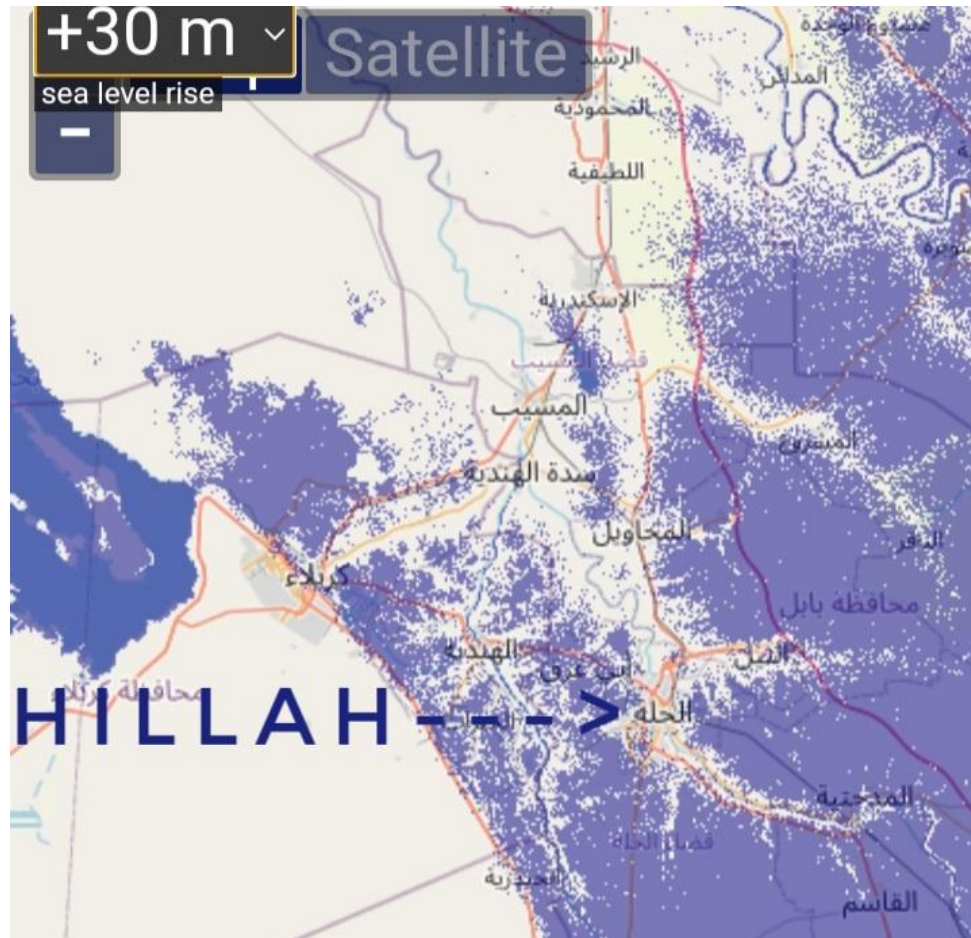

America is Rich? No, Europe is rich, and when the time comes, they will prove this to us, at a great cost, and surprise to America.

And finally, as I stated, when the trade barriers are dropped, you will have goods from Europe, Asia and Africa (and all over the world) all converging in exactly one location, and guess where that is?

Babylon.

So, though we might not understand how it is possible, it is possible nonetheless, and I will say this as well - it will be done, because that is what the literal interpretation of the Word of God says will be done.

Watch and see.

Expecting a Flood

Date: 13:03:26 Sep 5, 2010

I just found out that were the Polar Ice Caps to melt that it would raise sea levels anywhere from 50 to 60 meters or about 150 Feet. I had heard this before but, for some reason, was given the amount of 30 feet.

So, I just checked it again from three more sources and that is correct - we could expect at least about 100 feet change in current sea levels around the globe.

Well, this would flood lower Iraq right up to Hillah which is the ancient city of Babylon, turning it into a sea port once again and that's even if they don't redivert the Euphrates and Tigris rivers.

The sea has come up upon Babylon.

Babylonian World Map

This later Babylonian clay tablet, dating from the Persian Period (early 5th century B.C.), shows an asysocentric view of a flat, round world with Babylonia in the center. Its identity as a map attempting to depict the entire world is proved by the adjacent text, which mentions seven outer regions beyond the encircling ocean. This is a slightly different concept from that of the early Greeks, for whom the encircling ocean was outside of all known lands.

In addition to the entire kingdom of Babylonia, which is schematically portrayed, seven unnamed circles are depicted and an accompanying cuneiform text is found on both sides of the tablet. The text contains names of countries and cities but, on the reverse side, is chiefly concerned with a description of the Seven Islands or regions which are depicted in the form of equal triangles rising beyond the circle of the Earthly Ocean.

The descriptions of the first and second islands are not preserved. The third island is where "the winged bird ends not his flight," i.e., cannot reach. On the fourth island "the light is brighter than that of sunset or stars": it lay in the northwest, and after sunset in summer was practically in semi-obscurity. The fifth island, due north, lay in complete darkness - a land "where one sees nothing," and "the sun is not visible." The Sumerians and Babylonians probably had some knowledge, possibly acquired from other people, of the northern high latitudes and of the polar nights. Highly remarkable is the sixth island, "where a horned bull dwells and attacks the newcomer". The seventh island lay in the east and is thus described: "where the morning dawns," meaning that it faces the sunrise.

In summary, the Babylonian cosmos comprises a world map executed in cartographic manner, a contour sketch of the Seven Islands complete with descriptive text, and finally, a descriptive text (only) of the Heavenly Ocean and its animal constellations.

Babylonian Creation Epic : Written on Seven Tablets

Then Marduk considered Tiamat. He skimmed the spume from the bitter sea, heaped up the clouds, spindrift of wet and wind and cooling rain, the spittle of Tiamat.

With his own hands from the steaming mist he spread the clouds. He pressed hard down the head of water, heaping mountains over it, opening springs to flow: Euphrates and Tigris rose from her eyes, but he closed the nostrils and held back their springhead.

He piled huge mountains on her paps and through them drove water-holes to channel the deep sources; and high overhead He arched her tail, locked-in to the wheel of heaven; the pit was under his feet, between was the crotch, the sky's fulcrum. Now the earth had foundations and the sky its mantle.
